

The Birth and Memory of the Creator

Was the Creator born like humans, from a state of zero consciousness, without knowledge or memory? All existing matter is permeated and surrounded by energy and its consciousness. Matter can be shaped by consciousness, together with physical forces, according to physical laws. If this is true, then the consciousness, "power" of the Creator and physical laws are responsible for the creation of matter. It is possible that the Creator was born at the same time as the Universes, star systems and planetary systems. This was His first creation.

Where was the Creator born? Is it possible that he was from another Universe? If He creates the Universes, then He also created ours? According to physics, there was a Higgs space in which the Higgs boson gave mass to the particles. But creative thought can also do this.

What did the Creator see when He was born, if He was born? Since the Universe is the result of the Big Bang, according to scientists, the Creator could have seen a great light.

When was the Creator born? Scientists place the moment of the Big Bang at 15 billion years. So the age of the Creator is this or more.

If the Creator is consciousness and energy, how did it come about? Creative energy should be thought of as a physical force field governed by energy consciousness, thought, and physical laws. The idea could have been triggered by an event, such as a Big Bang. So his consciousness begins to live from the moment something happens, arises around him.

Did the consciousness of the Creator come into existence by itself, or was He also created by someone? The Creator consciousness is energy, created by thought and event.

What was the Creator born of? The Creator is energy. Does it come from living consciousness? The moment he thinks, he is considered alive.

Does the Creator also have rebirth? When the Creator erases and recreates a Universe, it is considered a rebirth.

If the Creator was ever born, did He have a childlike consciousness? He probably had, because he is also learning.

If He is an ancient energy, how old is his memory and what does He remember? The memory of the Creator probably goes back to the re-creation, for example, the creation of our Universe, or perhaps even the other Universe from which He came.
