

The Law of Attraction

With your thoughts, words, and actions, you can attract anything you've ever dreamed of. Do not wait for someone else to act on your behalf. "Help yourself, and God will help you." Divine energy and consciousness, as well as the people around you, can only support you if you yourself live with responsible, creative intent.

When you formulate a thought, consider carefully what steps you must take to make it come true. At that moment, God and those around you can stand by your side. "Ask, and you shall receive." If you do not ask, no one will come to assist you in your creation. Naturally, this requires knowledge—and love. If you do not act, nothing will move around you. The "heavenly manna" will not fall into your lap on its own.

Although I've written this elsewhere in the book, I cannot emphasize it enough: beauty attracts beauty, goodness attracts goodness, love attracts love, and knowledge attracts knowledge. This is why learning is essential—because conscious energies support the process of learning. If you do not use your consciousness, your thinking may become barren. If you do not use your body physically, you may fall ill. It is important to know: you are not alone. Your energies work with you, helping you move, understand, and grow.

To create happiness for yourself, you must use your creative abilities. And if possible, use them wisely—otherwise, creation may become distorted and lead to physical or emotional imbalance.

Consider the quality of your creation. If you spend your entire day on trivial tasks, such as household chores, do not expect to become a millionaire. Wealth requires good ideas, perseverance, knowledge, and above all, education. Imagine how much money you would like to have, and each morning write down what you would do to attract the positive energy of money into your life.

Your energies work with you and assist you in gaining knowledge. Don't always reach for the broomstick—reach for the pen instead. You are the idea, the spontaneous creative force. Don't let your idea vanish into the ether. Work diligently on the reality bubble you create from your vision. Act immediately—don't postpone. An idea is also a positive feeling within you—don't let it fade.

If you dedicate yourself to a topic, then over time—through the law of attraction—people, tools, and opportunities will begin to align around you to support your work. Here, I especially refer to help that comes with knowledge and love.

But remember: the law of attraction is not merely a magical tool—it is a mirror of consciousness. What you radiate is what you attract. If you carry fear, doubt, or anger, those energies will return to you. That's why inner cleansing, self-awareness, and heartfelt intention are so important. Creation is not just a technique—it is a way of life. A conscious presence in which every thought, every word, and every movement builds a new world.

The law of attraction does not discriminate—it works in small things just as it does in great ones. A smile, a kind word, a helping gesture can shift the flow of energy. And as you create order in the world, you will experience greater harmony within yourself.

The greatest creative force is love. If you create with love, you bring joy not only to yourself but to others as well. Love is a vibration that can retune the world. Therefore, let every act of creation be rooted in pure intention, compassion, and inner peace.
