

The Law of Attraction

With your thoughts, words, and actions, you can attract anything you have ever dreamed of. Do not wait for someone else to act in your place. “Help yourself, and God will help you.” Divine energy and consciousness, as well as the people around you, can only support you if you yourself live with responsibility and creative intention.

When you form a thought, consider what you must do to make it come true. Only then can God and people stand beside you. “Ask, and it shall be given.” Naturally, this requires knowledge and the presence of love around you. If you do not act, nothing will move around you. The “heavenly manna” will not fall into your lap by itself.

Although I have written this in other parts of the book as well, I cannot emphasize it enough: beauty attracts beauty, goodness attracts goodness, love attracts love, and knowledge attracts knowledge. This is why you must always keep learning — because the energies of consciousness support learning. If you do not use your mind, your thinking may become barren. If you do not use your body, you may become ill. It is important to know: you are not alone. Your energies work with you, helping you heal, learn, understand, and grow.

To create happiness for yourself, you must use your creative abilities. And if possible, use them wisely — otherwise your creation may become distorted and lead to physical or emotional imbalance.

Consider the quality of your creation. If you spend your entire day on small, trivial tasks — such as household chores — do not expect to become a millionaire. Wealth requires good ideas, perseverance, knowledge, and above all, education. Imagine how much money you want, and each morning write down what you will do that day to attract the positive energy of money into your life.

Your energies work with you and help you acquire knowledge. Do not always reach for the broomstick — reach for the pen instead. You are the idea, the spontaneous creative force. Do not let your idea disappear into the ether. Work diligently on the bubble of reality you create from your idea. Act immediately; do not postpone things. An idea is also a positive feeling within you — do not let it fade.

If you work deeply on a subject, then over time — according to the law of attraction — the people, tools, and opportunities that support your work will gather around you. I am thinking primarily of help that arrives with knowledge and love.

But remember: the law of attraction is not merely a magical tool — it is a mirror of consciousness. What you radiate is what you attract. If you carry fear, doubt, or anger, these energies will return to you as well. This is why inner cleansing, self-knowledge, and heartfelt intention are essential. Creation is not only a technique but a way of life — a conscious presence in which every thought, every word, and every movement builds a new world.

The law of attraction does not discriminate: it works in the small just as it works in the great. A smile, a kind word, a helpful gesture can change the flow of energy. And as you create order in the world around you, you will experience greater harmony within yourself.

The greatest creative force is love. When you create with love, you bring joy not only to yourself but also to others. Love is a vibration capable of tuning the world to a higher frequency. Therefore, let every creation of yours be rooted in pure intention, compassion, and inner peace.
